particular passages, the preacher may give additional questions for further study.

The general questions are:

- What does this passage tell me about God?
- What does this passage tell me about me?
- What do I need to change?

*None of these answers should be “nothing.”

The final section is for Questions. This is a place for you to write questions that come up during your study. It may be a comparison with another passage that is troubling, or understanding the shade of meaning in a word or phrase. It could be a theological point that you need help understanding.

And now – the Catch...

For this year (2018), the evening services here at Five Points will be focused on YOUR further study of these Scriptures. For these services, we will dive deeper into these passages, focusing on questions and insights you have gained through your wrestling with these passages in your personal study.

Ideally, we will take the prior week’s Sunday morning text as the focal passage for Sunday night’s study, allowing you a full week to ruminate over the passage. For the times when we have no Sunday evening service, we will cover any intervening weeks to be as thorough as we can in covering these passages.

Don’t fear if you miss a Sunday morning – we will make the Sunday morning messages available on the fivepointsbc.org website to allow you to remain current with our studies.

It is my hope that all our members will see the growth our Lord has for them through the ministry of His word.
